Equal Opportunity

The Code of Federal Regulations, Title 45, Part 1110, which effectuates provisions of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 provide that:

Under the above-cited statutes, the National Endowment for the Humanities is responsible for implementing compliance with and enforcement of public laws prohibiting discrimination because of race, color, national origin, sex, handicap and age in programs and activities receiving Federal assistance from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Any person who believes he or she has been discriminated against in any program, activity or facility or desires further information regarding Federal assistance should write immediately to: Director, Office of Equal Opportunity, National Endowment for the Humanities, 806-15th Street, N.W., M.S. 256, Washington, D.C. 20506.

Code of Ethics

If a proposed project relates to American Indians, Aleuts, Eskimos, or Native Hawaiian people, an applicant should contact the Endowment to obtain a copy of the NEH Code of Ethics. The code links grantees and the Endowment to certain standards of behavior appropriate to relationships in research, publication, and public programs with Native American peoples.

New Cover Keyword Code

Beginning with this edition of the NEH Overview, the Endowment is printing on its publications a code number identifying the academic discipline which is the subject of the publication (in this case signifying "Humanities, General"). The experimental code system was developed in a project funded by NEH and the National Science Foundation and is being implemented by those agencies and the National Institute of Education. The object of the experiment is to enable personnel at institutions to identify quickly the content of written materials.

Introduction/Contents

The National Endowment for the Humanities is an independent Federal agency created in 1965 to support research, education, and public activity in the humanities.

The establishment of the agency resulted from the determination of Congress that it is appropriate and necessary for the Federal government to complement and assist the support for the humanities provided by state and local governments and private sources.

The Endowment is directed by a Chairman and the National Council on the Humanities, an advisory body comprised of 26 distinguished private citizens. The Chairman and the Council are appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation.

The Endowment's grantmaking is carried out through five divisions—Education Programs, Fellowships and Seminars, General Programs, Research Programs, State Programs—and two offices—Office of Challenge Grants and Office of Planning and Policy Assessment.

How the Endowment Operates

How Grants Are Awarded

The Endowment awards grants through a careful review process.

In most programs, applications are sent to appropriate specialist reviewers outside of the agency. Simultaneously, NEH staff members assemble panels to consider all of the applications submitted to each program by the required deadline. Members of the panels are familiar with subjects, institutions, and organizations represented by the applications and include teachers, scholars, members of various professions, and members of the general public.

Recommendations of the reviewers and panelists whether to fund or not to fund the applications are forwarded to the National Council on the Humanities. The Council meets four times a year to consider the views of reviewers, panelists, and staff members concerning applications and to recommend action to the Chairman. By law, the Chairman makes the final decision on each application.

Grants may be outright grants, or matching grants under which the grantee has to raise funds from other sources to match the Federal award, or a combination of the two. Humanistic institutions also may apply for support under the Challenge Grants program, in which one Federal dollar is awarded to match three dollars raised from other sources (see page 14).

Areas Funded by NEH

Congress has defined the humanities as the study of language; linguistics; literature; history; jurisprudence; philosophy; archaeology; comparative religion; ethics; the history, criticism and theory of the arts; those aspects of the social sciences which have humanistic content and employ humanistic methods; and the study and application of the humanities to the human environment, with particular attention to the relevance of the humanities to the current conditions of national life.

Areas Not Funded

The Endowment does not provide support for:

- Predoctoral fellowships.
- Research or study to acquire an academic degree.
- Travel by individuals to professional meetings.
- Original works of art, or performance or training in the arts.

Are You Eligible?

You may apply for Endowment support if you are a United States citizen or national or a foreign national who has lived in the United States or its territories for at least three years at the time you apply. NEH welcomes applications for support from non-profit groups, institutions and organizations engaged in projects involving the humanities.

If You Want to Apply

If you plan to seek a grant from the Endowment, you should request guidelines and application forms for the program in which you are interested. Contact the Public Affairs Office, Mail Stop 351, National Endowment for the Humanities, 806 15th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506.

For more efficient service, please enclose a self-addressed mailing label when requesting information.

Program Summaries

Division of Education Programs

Central Disciplines in Undergraduate Education — Grants support costs associated with strengthening the teaching of the humanities in colleges and universities. Applications should show evidence of activities, plans, and commitments to improve the quality, rigor, and coherence of offerings in the humanities.

Eligible applicants: Two- and four-year colleges, universities, nonprofit technical schools, and other post-secondary institutions.

Improving Introductory Courses — Grants support institutional plans to give introductory courses a more central place in the curriculum and to make the first experiences of undergraduates in the humanities more effective.

Promoting Excellence in a Field — Grants support plans to improve the quality of all the courses and faculty in a specific discipline or field.

Fostering Coherence Throughout an Institution — Grants support plans to improve the total program of offerings in the humanities in an institution.

Contact: Assistant Director or Program Officer for one of the three programs named above, Mail Stop 202, Telephone (202) 724-0393.

Humanities Instruction in Elementary and Secondary Schools — Grants support institutes and projects designed to improve the teaching of history, foreign languages, literature, and the other humanities in elementary and secondary schools.

Eligible applicants: Public and private elementary and secondary schools, school systems, colleges and universities, and other nonprofit educational organizations.

Institutes for Teachers — Provide opportunities for teachers of history, languages, literature, and other humanistic disciplines to learn more about their fields and the most effective ways of teaching them by studying under the direction of leading scholars and master teachers.

Collaborative Projects — Provide partial support for joint university-school system projects of varying sizes designed to strengthen the curriculum and teaching in the basic disciplines of the humanities.

Contact: Assistant Director, Humanities Instruction in Elementary and Secondary Schools, Mail Stop 202, Telephone (202) 724-0373.

Exemplary Projects in Undergraduate and Graduate Education— Grants to promote the development and dissemination of projects in the humanities which are likely to have significance to a large number of institutions.

Eligible applicants: Colleges and universities, nonprofit academic and professional associations, and other institutions or agencies serving higher education.

Feasibility Grants— Assist institutions to refine and evaluate programs or materials which have the potential for national dissemination.

Major Projects— Provide for direct dissemination activities such as conferences, workshops, and institutes and for the preparation of teaching materials.

Contact: Program Officer, Exemplary Projects in Undergraduate and Graduate Education, Mail Stop 202, Telephone (202) 724-0311.

Humanities Programs for Nontraditional Learners— Grants support efforts to improve the quality and rigor of humanistic education offered to new types of learners through cost-effective means.

Eligible Applicants: Colleges, universities, educational consortia, libraries, museums, and other cultural institutions.

Contact: Program Officer, Humanities Programs for Nontraditional Learners, Mail Stop 202, Telephone (202) 724-0311.

Teaching Materials from Recent Research— Grants support preparation of teaching materials based on recently completed scholarly research. Although Endowment-funded research is of particular interest, the program is also open to other applicants.

Eligible Applicants: Organizations and individuals possessing the capability to achieve the program's purposes.

Contact: Program Officer, Teaching Materials from Recent Research, Mail Stop 202, Telephone (202) 724-0311.

Division of Fellowships and Seminars

Fellowships for Independent Study and Research— For scholars, teachers, and others to undertake full-time independent study and research.

Eligible Applicants: Individuals.

Contact: Program Officer, Fellowships for Independent Study and Research, Mail Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0333.

Fellowships for College Teachers— For teachers in two-year, four-year, and five-year colleges and universities to undertake full-time study and research.

Eligible Applicants: Individuals.

Contact: Program Officer, Fellowships for College Teachers, Mail Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0333.

Summer Stipends— For college and university teachers and others to provide support for two consecutive months of full-time independent study and research.

Eligible Applicants: Individuals. College and university teachers must be nominated by their institutions; others apply directly to the division.

Contact: Program Officer, Summer Stipends, Mail Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0333.

Fellowships in the Humanities for Journalists— For full-time practicing journalists to spend an academic year at the University of Michigan or Stanford University studying the humanistic dimensions of their professional interests.

Eligible Applicants: Individuals apply to the fellowship institutions.

Contact: Fellowships Division, Mail Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0376.

Summer Seminars for College Teachers—

Participants— For teachers at undergraduate and two-year colleges to participate in eight-week summer seminars directed by distinguished scholars at institutions with libraries suitable for advanced study.

Eligible Applicants: Individuals. Applications are submitted to the seminar director.

Contact: Program Officer, Summer Seminars for College Teachers, Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0376.

Directors— For scholars at institutions with libraries suitable for advanced study to design and direct summer seminars.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions.

Contact: Program Officer, Summer Seminars for College Teachers, Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0376.

Summer Seminars for Secondary School Teachers—

Participants— For full-time or regular part-time secondary school teachers to participate in summer seminars focusing on significant texts in the humanities and directed by master teachers and distinguished scholars.

Eligible Applicants: Individuals. Applications are submitted to the seminar director.

Contact: Program Officer, Summer Seminars for Secondary School Teachers, Mail Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0376.

Directors— For master teachers and scholars at institutions suitable for advanced study to design and direct summer seminars.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions.

Contact: Program Officer, Summer Seminars for Secondary School Teachers, Mail Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0376.

Fellowship Support to Centers for Advanced Study— To provide opportunities for scholars in the humanities to undertake study and research and to exchange ideas with scholars in other fields at centers for advanced study.

Eligible Applicants: Independent centers for advanced study, research libraries, and other equivalent institutions. Individuals apply to the centers.

Contact: Program Officer, Centers for Advanced Study, Mail Stop 101, Telephone (202) 724-0376.

Division of General Programs

Grants from this Division serve one of two broad purposes: to increase public understanding and appreciation of the humanities or to undertake new programmatic initiatives that lie outside other guidelines of the agency.

Humanistic Projects in Media — Support the preparation or production of humanistic television and radio programs intended for general audiences and reflecting the collaboration of scholars in the humanities and experienced producers, writers, and directors.

Eligible Applicants: Non-profit institutions, organizations and groups, including public television and radio stations.

Contact: Assistant Director, Humanistic Projects in Media, Mail Stop 403, Telephone (202) 724-0318.

Humanistic Projects in Museums and Historical Organizations — Support the development of interpretive exhibits and programs that emphasize an understanding of the history of art, aesthetic theory, the human environment, or the social contexts in which a variety of artifacts have been created.

Eligible Applicants: Museums, historical societies, and other non-profit organizations and institutions.

Contact: Assistant Director, Humanistic Projects in Museums and Historical Organizations, Mail Stop 402, Telephone (202) 724-0327.

Special Projects — Support one of two aims: to provide opportunities for young people to learn about or contribute to the humanities through out-of-school activities, or to develop humanistic programs that fall outside other guidelines of the Endowment.

Youth Grants — Support humanistic projects by young people who are engaging in primary research, media presentations, or educational projects serving local communities.

Eligible Applicants: Individuals or groups, directly or through non-profit institutions.

Youth Projects — Support out-of-school humanistic projects involving participation by large groups of young people under the guidance of scholars and youth professionals.

Eligible Applicants: Non-profit institutions or organizations.

Contact: Assistant Director, Special Projects, Mail Stop 103, Telephone (202) 724-0396.

Humanistic Projects in Libraries — Support programs, exhibits, publications, and other activities that encourage general audiences to use the humanistic resources of libraries.

Eligible Applicants: Public, academic, research, and special libraries; state, county, and regional library systems; library associations and library schools.

Contact: Assistant Director, Special Projects, Mail Stop 406, Telephone (202) 724-0760.

Program Development— Supports projects that propose new programmatic initiatives falling outside other guidelines of the Endowment. Proposals highlighting the forthcoming Bicentennial of the Constitution are especially encouraged.

Eligible Applicants: Non-profit institutions and groups.

Contact: Assistant Director, Special Projects, Mail Stop 401, Telephone (202) 724-0398.

Division of Research Programs

General Research— Program provides support for projects in all fields of the humanities and aspects of the social sciences that explore a problem through original research and creative thought. Awards are made in three areas:

Basic Research— Supports research projects, often longer-term and collaborative, in all fields of the humanities, including archaeology.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions, educational organizations, individuals.

Research Conferences— Support meetings of scholars whose purpose is to discuss and advance research in a particular topic or field.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions, educational organizations, individuals.

State, Local and Regional Studies— Support research that fosters the understanding of the history and culture of regions and communities.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions, historical societies, educational organizations, individuals.

Contact: Assistant Director, General Research Program, Mail Stop 350, Telephone (202) 724-0276.

Humanities, Science and Technology— Supports projects which bring the resources and perspectives of the humanities to bear on science and technology, including individual interdisciplinary studies and institutional development.

Eligible Applicants: Non-profit institutions and individuals.

Contact: Coordinator, Humanities, Science, and Technology, Mail Stop 350, Telephone (202) 724-0276.

Research Materials— Support is provided for preparation of reference works considered of highest importance for the advancement of research in the humanities and for the general dissemination of knowledge throughout the country. There are four major areas of support:

Research Tools and Reference Works— Grants support the creation of research tools such as dictionaries, encyclopedias, atlases, catalogues raisonnés, linguistic grammars, descriptive catalogues, and data bases.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions, non-profit professional associations and societies, individuals.

Editions— Grants support the preparation of editions of documents and works from all fields in the humanities.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions, non-profit professional associations and societies, individuals.

Translations— Grants support the creation of annotated translations into English of primary and secondary documents and works significant to the humanities.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions, non-profit professional associations and societies, individuals.

Publications— Provide support to publishers for publication subvention of manuscripts resulting from NEH grants and, on a limited basis, for works whose preparation was not previously aided by the Endowment.

Eligible Applicants: Commercial and non-profit presses, publishing houses.

Contact: Assistant Director, Research Materials Program, Mail Stop 350, Telephone (202) 724-1672.

Research Resources— Grants for projects to place hitherto unavailable materials in public repositories; to facilitate access by preparing catalogues, inventories, registers, guides, bibliographies, and other finding aids; and to improve the ways in which librarians, archivists, and others care for and make available the research materials entrusted to them.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions and individuals.
Contact: Assistant Director, Research Resources Program, Mail Stop 350, Telephone (202) 724-0341.

United States Newspaper Projects — Supports projects in states and U.S. Territories for the bibliographic control of U.S. newspapers; the planning of a state-wide project, the cataloguing of newspapers, and the entry of bibliographic data and holdings records in the Library of Congress CONSER data base. The preservation of newspapers on microform may be applied for upon the completion of on-line computerized records.
Eligible Applicants: State agencies, organizations institutions and libraries.
Contact: U.S. Newspaper Projects Officer, Mail Stop 350, Telephone (202) 724-1672.

Intercultural Research — Program provides funds for national research agencies which, in turn, solicit applications from scholars for work abroad. Examples are the Fellowships Program of the Social Science Research Council, and several programs administered by the American Council of Learned Societies.
Eligible Applicants: Research agencies or organizations.
Contact: Intercultural Research Regranting Program, Mail Stop 350, Telephone (202) 724-0226.

Division of State Programs

For projects in the humanities involving topics of interest or concern to the citizens of each state; operated through volunteer councils in each state.
Eligible Applicants: Councils in compliance with Endowment authorizing legislation; non-profit agencies, civic associations or groups apply to the council in their state, the District of Columbia or Puerto Rico (see addresses on pages 16-19).
Contact: Director, Division of State Programs, Mail Stop 404, Telephone (202) 724-0286.

Office of Challenge Grants

Challenge Grants — Support for cultural institutions and organizations in order to increase financial stability and to preserve or improve the quality of programs in the humanities; institutions must raise at least three dollars in new or increased donations from non-Federal sources to receive each Federal dollar.

Eligible Applicants: Cultural institutions and organizations working within the humanities.

Contact: Challenge Grants, Mail Stop 800, Telephone (202) 724-0267.

Office of Planning and Policy Assessment

Planning and Assessment Studies Program — Grants to support studies and experiments designed to collect and analyze data — including information about financial, material, and human resources — which help assess the condition of important sectors in the humanities. Explorations of signficant trends or emerging issues in the humanities are also encouraged, along with the design, testing, and implementation of analytical tools for evaluation and policy analysis.

Through this program the Endowment also conducts special competitions designed to stimulate research and analysis needed on a particular topic or range of topics. Applications submitted to such special competitions may be supported by either grants or contracts.

Eligible Applicants: Institutions, associations, individuals.

Contact: Assistant Director, Planning and Assessment Studies Program, Mail Stop 303, Telephone (202) 724-0369.
